Singing in the rain

Residents come out for second annual Art Crawl

By MEGAN LOISELLE
antioch@weeklyjournals.com

ANTIOCH - The sound of music resonated through the pitter-patter of the rain during the second annual Art Crawl in Antioch on May 3.

Students playing under the band shell stayed dry during their concert, but other musicians weren't so lucky.

The solo ensemble group in the senior band at Antioch Upper Grade School walked from store to store along Main Street in search of shelter - and audience members.

In their last performance, the students lined up under the roof overhang in front of J.J. Blinks.

Each pair of talented musicians took turns sharing their art with those passing by.

"It is fun being out here, but it is cold and our fingers get cold," said Brittany Hansen, who is an eighth-grader at Antioch Upper Grade School. "It's hard to stay in pitch because of the cold."

Hansen said some of her friends came by to give encouragement.

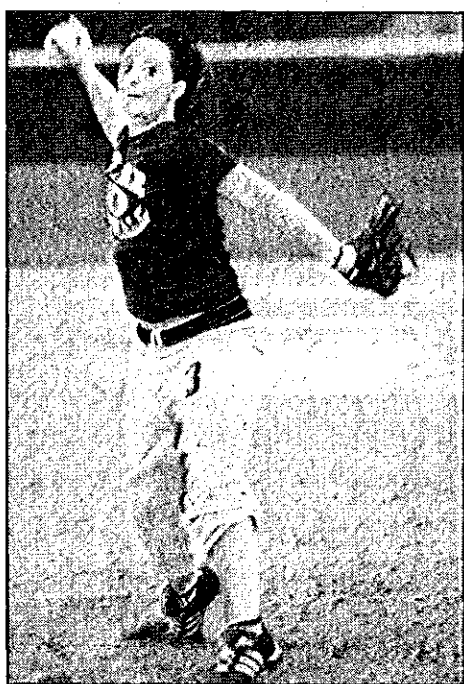

Afterwards, they piled their instruments and the soaked music stands into a back of a pickup.

Their director, Earl Bush, said they had "paid their debt to society" as they went to play indoors.

Back at the band shell, members of the area elementary school concert string orchestra entertained the umbrella-clutching audience with several of the songs they had learned this year.

Newspapers nourishment for towns' spirit

I hate whenever I hear that the community newspaper is dying because it simply isn't true.

Changing? Yes. Dying? Hardly. Maybe newspapers won't be the same as they once were - in fact, I'd just about bet the similarly "dying" farm on it - but as long as people want to know what's going on in the community they live in, papers will exist in one form or another. Just like as long as people want food, farms will exist in one way or another.

Newspapers are a form of nourishment. They nourish our curiosity about what's going on around us.

There was once a time when just about every town in America had its own newspaper. Some of the bigger towns even had a morning and evening paper. A town simply wasn't a town without a newspaper.

Joe

But then came consolidations and mergers and closings and the big, bad Internet.

But big area newspapers and the Internet have bigger fish to fry and many times smaller and medium-sized towns are ignored.

And that's where we come in. But, just like our predecessors, we need your help. We have seven weekly newspapers and three full-time reporters. You do the math.

All of our reporters have at least three towns that they cover, if not more. They lay out the papers; they take photographs; and they help out with the sports, county and the LakeLife sections.

They write previews, personality profiles, features and even cover breaking news for the Web site if it is warranted. They pretty much rock.

But they simply can't make it to all the meetings. They don't know every event that is happening. They don't always know when somebody is doing something great for the community.

Which is where you come in. We rely on you for information as much as you rely on us for profiles on residents and town happenings. Help us out and, together, we can nourish our community.

Store windows filled with color, student's artwork

• ART CRAWL

Proud parents Marsha and Quentin Noble said they enjoyed their son's performance despite the weather.

"It was actually very good," Marsha said.

Jarrott Baker's grandparents drove home from Florida just in time to watch him play the trumpet in the Antioch Upper Grade School pep band.

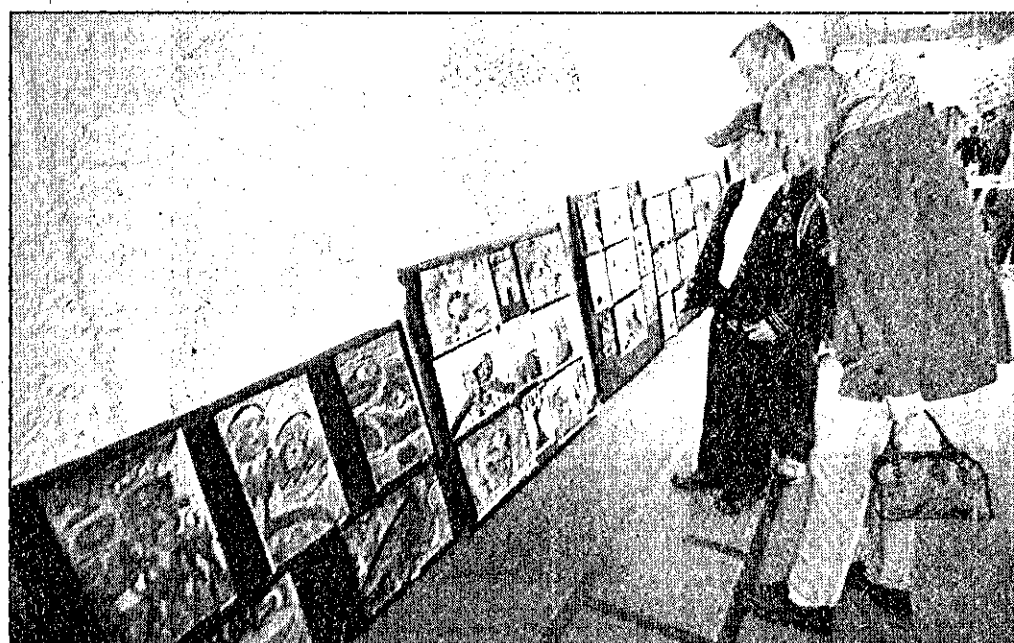

"He did a good job," said Jan Baker, his grandmother. "We're going to stay and watch the high school band."

It started to rain a little harder as the Antioch Central High School's jazz band performed. Sitting on one of the picnic tables, Sarah Heuschele cuddled in a blanket next to her mother, Dee Heuschele.

"They sound really good, don't they?" Dee said to her daughter. "Someday you could be in the jazz band."

Sarah was waiting for her performance as one of the clarinet players in the fifth-grade band, which consisted of students from Oakland, W.C. Petty and Antioch elementary schools.

Although gray skies forced many of the activities indoors, the store windows were still full of color. Artwork from the Antioch School District 34 students was displayed in the windows of area businesses.

Mary Bronswick and her daughter Emily were searching for two pictures Emily had drawn.

"It was a rainbow fish thing and a tree," said Emily, a third-grader at W.C. Petty. "I like [art] because it's fun to draw and fun to see your stuff."

"It's fun trying to discover where it's at, right?" Mary said.

The children were not the only ones displaying their artwork. Several local professional artists set up booths in the same building as Suzanne's Picture Framing on Main Street. The booths were moved indoors because of the rain.

Roger Shule, who founded the Art Foundation in 2001, said the purpose of the Art Crawl was to create an appreciation for the arts. He said retired Antioch Elementary Principal Deborah Harding started the event last year to engage students in the fine arts.

Antioch woman finds her routine

Resident teaches Jazzercise classes in Fox Lake to stay in shape

By MATT DOUTHETT
mdouthett@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH — It's hard to tell by looking at her, but Melanie Gelerand said she has battled weight problems for a long time. The Antioch resident teaches Jazzercise six days a week, with some classes starting as early as 5:30 a.m.

"I was a very heavy child, so I've worked very hard to lose weight," she said. "Jazzercise has really helped me keep the weight off."

Gelerand, 43, enjoys what she does, even if she has to teach early in the morning.

"I enjoy it a lot," she said. "One of the rules about exercising is that it has to be fun. Jazzercise is fun."

She said one of the good things about Jazzercise was that it can be taught to everyone, regardless of age or fitness level.

"I've taught all ages — from 3-year-olds in a mom and tots class to 75-year-olds who have just had hip replacements," Gelerand said. "Jazzercise can help anyone, as long as they like exercise and music."

Gelerand has three young daughters. She said they motivated her to maintain a healthy lifestyle.

The instructor teaches several different forms of Jazzercise.

One is a body sculpting class, which lasts about 45 minutes and uses weights and tubes while working out on a resistance ball.

The regular Jazzercise class blends jazz dance, traditional aerobics, kickboxing, Pilates, yoga and muscle toning movements that are choreographed to all kinds of music.

Every class includes a warm-up, 30-minute aerobic workout, muscle toning and ends with a cool-down. by appointment only.

Melanie Gelerand of Antioch leads a Jazzercise class at Lakefront Park in Fox Lake. The 60-minute class incorporates cardio, strength, and stretch moves for a complete body workout.

There is also a personal touch class "You have to combine the cardio

Want to learn more?

Melanie Gelerand's Jazzercise classes are taught at varying times Monday through Saturday at the Lakefront Building, 71 Nippersink Blvd., Fox Lake. workout with the weight training to be healthy and to be able to lose weight," Gelerand said. "You have to add the muscle to burn more calories. It all works hand in hand."

Gelerand said the average Jazzercise participant burned about 400 calories during a class.

"We teach our students to monitor how hard they're working by their perceived exertion rate," Gelerand said. "In class, I yell to my students and see if they give me answers. As long as you can talk, you're working in the green zone."

Gelerand said the green zone also can be called the fat burning zone, which is between 55-85 percent of your maximum heart rate.

"One of the basic rules of Jazzercise is once you start working, don't abruptly stop, because your heart rate will go down and you could pass out," Gelerand said.

Gelerand said she has a lot of fun teaching the classes, but it can be tough sometimes.

"It takes a lot of focus to do the routines and to be able to tell people what they're supposed to do," she said. "It is very challenging, but at the same time it's very rewarding when I hear about people I've taught being able to lose weight."

Put your green thumb to work

Antioch Garden Club to host annual plant sale Saturday

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

ANTIOCH – Antioch residents soon will get a chance to test out their green thumbs.

Rain or shine from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Saturday, May 10, the Antioch Garden Club will host its annual plant sale at Williams Park Pavilion, behind the Antioch library.

Cindy Cartener, plant sales chairwoman, said the club will sell annuals, perennials, herbs, grasses and garden-related items. There also will be a bake sale.

Check it out

What: Antioch Garden Club Plant Sale
When: 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, May 10
Where: Williams Park Pavilion, behind the Antioch library
Sale items: Annuals, perennials, herbs, grasses and garden-related items.

"We would just like to have a lot of people come and share our enthusiasm," Cartener said.

The money collected from the sale will go toward the wreath making the club does as well as horticulture scholarships.

Because the event will take place under the pavilion, it will go on despite any possible rain. But Cartener is still hoping to see the sun that day.

"We're hoping for dry good weather," she said.

Cartener also encourages people who might not consider themselves to have a green thumb to come out.

"The plants we have are easy to grow," she said.

Cartener also is hoping to see younger people visit the event because she would like to see "more people to become interested in horticulture."

ACHS student awarded summer study adventure

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

ANTIOCH – Ross Houslander, son of Doris and Joel Houslander of Antioch, has recently been awarded an all-expense-paid summer study trip to the Federal Republic of Germany.

Houslander, a student at Antioch Community High School, was eligible for the honor by scoring in the 96th percentile on the National German Exam. He also wrote two essays in German and was interviewed by five high school and college German teachers. These teachers recommended him to the National Executive Board of American Association of Teachers of German, which selected the winners.

Ross was one of about 26,000 students who competed for the study trip by participating in a nationwide

German testing program administered by the American Association of Teachers of German. Founded in 1926, the AATG is the only national organization representing German teachers at all levels of instruction.

Forty-four students were selected to receive these prizes. There are two awards: 39 regular study trips, lasting three and half weeks, and five senior study trips, which last a month.

The study trip awards have been made possible each for more than years by a grant from the Federal Republic of Germany through its Embassy in Washington, D.C.

Houslander and the other winners will travel to Germany this summer to participate in the study trip, including excursions of cultural and historic interest.

getting a heart care second opinion
It's not uncommon. It's not disloyal. It's not complex.
is essential.

Did you know that newly diagnosed heart patients are commonly encouraged to get a second opinion prior to treatment? When it comes to something as serious as your heart, it's smart to get all the facts and explore all your treatment options. You may even learn that your condition can be treated without surgery.

Fast track second opinion program.

At Aurora St. Luke's Medical Center, it's easy to get the cardiac second opinion you need. We'll handle all the paperwork and even get your medical records. And we'll arrange an appointment with one of our leading cardiac specialists, often in just a few days.

Wisconsin's heart care leader.

At Aurora St. Luke's, patients have access to advanced treatment options not found at most other hospitals. We are Wisconsin's volume leader and perform more procedures than any other hospital. Independent studies have shown that patients do better at hospitals performing the most procedures. And isn't doing better what it's all about?

To learn more about your heart care options, please call our Second Opinion Hotline at 888-649-6892.

Maybe, just maybe, R.E.M. had it right

Yes, my hair magically grew long since last Tuesday. It's a miracle! Or a sign that the end is nigh. Just look at the news. Hades is freezing over. Here are three of the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse found in recent news. Maybe R.E.M. was right, it's the end of the world as we know it. I'll let you decide what the fourth horseman is.

If I were a betting woman ...

Breaking news. According to an unsubstantiated e-mail my spam filter didn't block, the earth's population odometer will roll over to 6,666,666,666 on Saturday, thusly ending the world ... um, because of all the sixes or something, I guess.

Being the ace journalist that I am, I checked the U.S. Census bureau Web site, which predicted we were at 6,665,734,800 Monday afternoon.

That sounds about right, according to my master's degree in calculus from Sally Struthers University.

The e-mail was from a betting Web site that has odds the world will end at 500/1. And if it does?

Well, then it will be very easy - or very hard - to collect on that one.

Party like it's May 10, 2008 ...

(get it? because that's when the population becomes ... nevermind).

This just in. The Artist Formerly Known as Prince Who Is Now Known Just As Prince Again is writing (a very loose term) a book.

It's not called "The Book Formerly Known As Prince's Book" (heh, heh, heh).

It's called "21 Nights" and is described as a "photographic essay," not surprising for a guy who doesn't like to use words.

I'll remind you he changed his name to a glorified ampersand for some time.

The book is scheduled to appear in the fall, so I guess that Prince knows something the U.S. Census Bureau doesn't.

Another Midwest earthquake

We've all gotten used to the idea that California will one day crumble into the Pacific.

But Missouri? There was a temblor Monday in Fenton, Mo.

A 5.2 stuck Illinois last month. If the gods are angry, they're slowly taking us down - one shattered knick-knack at a time.

Audubon Society hosts first event for children

By KATHY GRESEY

With binoculars and guide books in tow, a group of children headed into Old School Forest Preserve near Libertyville with members of the Lake County Audubon Society.

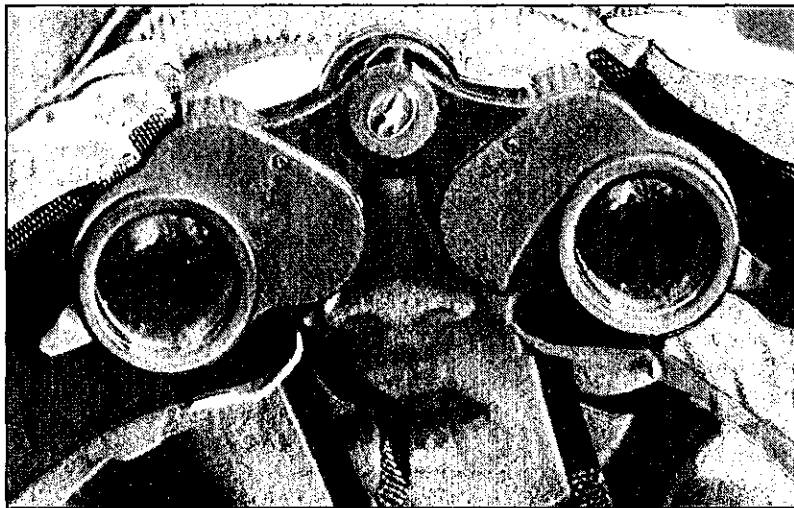

The trip was monumental for the local birding organization because it had never hosted an outing for kids before April 30.

Don Wilson, a director on the Lake County Audubon Society Board, said children could learn a lot about the outdoors while scouting for birds, which was one of the reasons the activity was organized.

"It gives kids an appreciation for nature," Wilson said. "It lets them know everything is connected and that it is important to protect open space."

About 20 children and adults participated in the inaugural birding expedition. And before the group even left the forest preserve parking lot, a chickadee and a bluebird were spotted.

As the walk continued, red-winged blackbirds, robins and a white-throated sparrow were seen. Ana Okinczyc, 9, of Vernon Hills, said a bird-related wish of hers was fulfilled during the excursion.

"It was the first time in my life I saw a bluebird," she said. "It's always been my dream to see one."

Any child can participate in a kid's birding event hosted by the Lake County Audubon Society. Children often benefit from such outdoor activities, said Chris Geiselhart, president of the society's board.

"Children are becoming nature phobic because they spend so much time indoors with their video games and iPods and TVs," she said. "If you can get people at this age to think about the world around them, it can create a life-long interest in learning and the environment."

Sue Sturm of Grayslake said she brought her children - Natalie, 9, and Eric, 8 - to the society's first birding event because it provided a first-hand lesson about the outdoors.

"You can't get this from a book," she said. "It's not the same."

Natalie Sturm agreed, noting the environment a round her as she walked along a forest preserve path looking for feathered animals.

"I like how we can get really close to the birds," she said. "It's really cool that we're practically in their habitat."

Event to benefit Special Olympics Illinois

By KATHY GRESEY

Local police officers hope to grab the public's attention this week during a fundraiser for the 23rd annual Law Enforcement Torch Run, which benefits Special Olympics Illinois.

Police from Round Lake Beach, Fox Lake, Mundelein and other areas will stake themselves atop Dunkin' Donuts stores from 5 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday, May 9, to raise money for the annual Law Enforcement Torch Run.

Dunkin' Donuts customers who donate to the fundraiser will receive a free doughnut, and those who give $20 or more will receive a Law Enforcement Torch Run travel mug and a coupon for free coffee.

Funds generated from the event will go toward worthwhile activities, said Joe Pena,

Where to donate

• People who would like to donate to the 23rd annual Law Enforcement Torch Run can stop by Dunkin' Donuts stores from 5 a.m. to 2 p.m. Friday, May 9. Local locations will be at 706 E. Rollins Road, Round Lake Beach; 5 S. Grand Ave., Fox Lake; 346 N. Lake St., Mundelein; 722 S. Route 83, Mundelein; and 700 N. Milwaukee Ave., Vernon Hills.

director of the Law Enforcement Torch Run for Special Olympics Illinois.

"Special Olympics has been a program that the law enforcement community has embraced," Pena said.

"Certainly, helping 20,000 athletes across the state is a good thing."

The Law Enforcement Torch Run was started in 1986.

Each year, more than 3,000 officers cover 1,500 miles while carrying the Flame of Hope through the streets of their hometowns and then on to the Summer Games, which will be in Bloomington-Normal.

Pena would like to raise a record-breaking amount of money during this year's sixth annual Dunkin' Donuts fundraiser, which would mean collecting more than $108,300 in donations.

Police who have participated in the event encouraged people to help Special Olympics Illinois.

"Look around," said Sgt. Mark Parrish of the Mundelein Police Department.

"They [Special Olympics participants] are hard workers. The money is going to a good cause."

CASA seeks adult volunteers to help abused, neglected kids

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

Court Appointed Special Advocates, or CASA, seeks adult volunteers or advocates who want to make a difference in the lives of abused and neglected children.

The volunteers must be at least 21 years old. They will be trained at twice-weekly three-hour classes beginning May 6 and ending June 11 at CASA University located in suite 312 at 1020 Milwaukee Ave., Deerfield. During training, CASA volunteers will learn about how CASA works with the other agencies, the laws that protect our children, and how to understand families and children in crisis.

Advocates will learn how to make fact-based observations and recommendations to the court to best meet the children's needs. If volunteers need to miss a class, missed classes can be made up at a later date.

Training concludes when new advocates are sworn in at the Lake County Juvenile Courthouse as representatives of the court, said Terri McDonnell, advocate trainer for CASA.

She said the child abuse and neglect cases are assigned to a trained CASA volunteer to represent the best interests of the child as an advocate for them and to act as a fact-finder for the judge.

The advocate represents the child until the case closes and a permanent placement is reached.

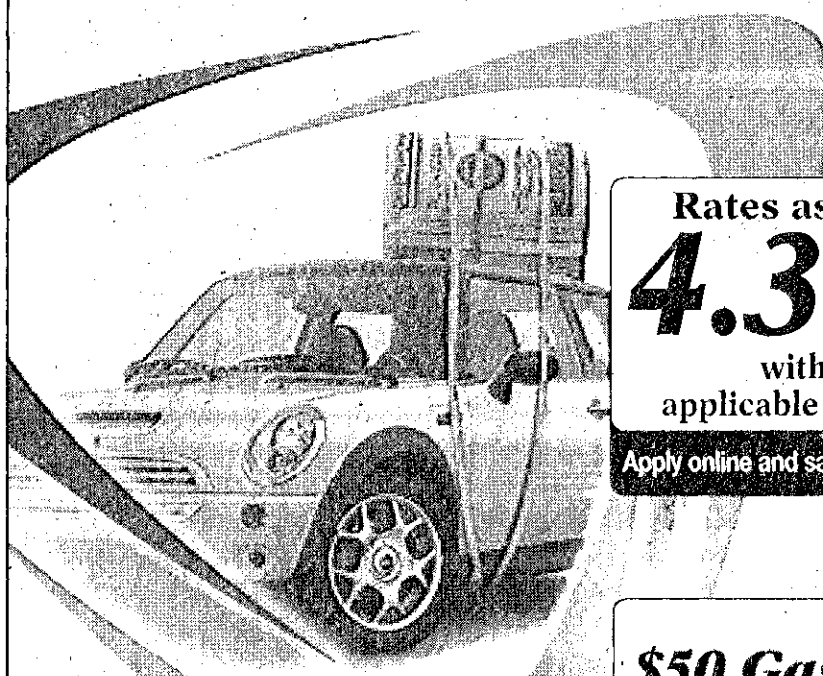

McDonnell said there is a desperate need for more volunteers.

The organization has about 250 volunteers but far more abused and neglected children need trained volunteers, she said.

To volunteer or learn more about CASA call 847-808-9154 or look at the group's Web site at www.casalakecounty.com.

Director retires from Extension

Doll moves on after 6 years as leader of local U of I office in Lake County

By KATHY GRESEY
kgresey@nwnewsgroup.com

GRAYSLAKE – With her friends, family and co-workers at her side, Kay Doll recognized her retirement from the University of Illinois Extension in Lake County.

Doll, of Gurnee, most recently served as director of the local Extension, a post she held for six years. She first joined the organization as a teacher in 1992.

"It's bittersweet," Doll said of her retirement. "It's exciting to be looking at something new, but the people you work with are like your extended family."

The retirement party for Doll took place on Wednesday at the Lake County Extension office in Grayslake.

Nancy Johannsen, a program coordinator with the Extension, attended the farewell gathering.

She said Doll had put 100 percent into her position as director.

"Her job was very demanding – a lot of nights, a lot of weekends," she said. "She was on 24-7. She did it for six years, and she gave it her all."

Doll was praised by both Extension employees and volunteers during the party.

Mary Spiwak, a volunteer with the local organization since 2001, said Doll made her feel like a valued member of the group.

"She really [made] me feel like my volunteer time [was] appreciated," she said. "You don't find that in every volunteer situation."

Post retirement, Doll said, she planned to spend more time with her family.

She will begin teaching at Naval Station Great Lakes this summer.

"I'm going to be teaching personal financial management," she said. "I'm excited about that."

Doll has been replaced by Larry Wilson, who is serving as interim director of the Extension in Lake County.

IMSA seeks 'Explorers' for science program

LAKE COUNTY JOURNALS

The Illinois Mathematics and Science Academy Kids Institute is seeking applicants for its summer Science Explorers program to be at its new location in Lake County.

The program, for students entering fifth or sixth grades, is in partnership with the Lake County Regional Office of Education and Rondout School District 72, and the support of the IMSA Fund for Advancement of Education.

During the program, from 8:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. July 14-18, students will explore agricultural and geological mysteries of ancient cultures around the world.

Through inquiry-based experiences, participants will navigate a dense jungle, supply water to a desert farm and build the eighth wonder of the ancient world. The $225 cost includes a daily lunch and snack, a T-shirt and supplies.

For information or to register, call 630-907-5950 or e-mail online at summerprograms@imsa.edu. The deadline to register is May 30, and is limited to the first 20 applicants.

IMSA president Dr. Max McGee said this year's expansion of Science Explorers is made possible thanks to the generous support and hard work of educators in Lake County.

Designed and taught by IMSA students under the guidance of IMSA staff, the new Lake County Science Explorers program will be at Rondout School, 28593 N. Bradley Road, Lake Forest.

Big raises for Rod and pals

You know those lousy state officials we have been paying for?

The ones who have failed to address Illinois' infrastructure needs? The executives and legislators who got into that intractable budget battle last year? The guys and gals who have failed to address issues such as education, and whose only solution to budget woes is to propose new and exciting forms of gambling?

How about we start paying them lots and lots of more money for the terrible job they have been doing. That is the recommendation from the state's Compensation Review Board. The proposal from the board would boost Gov. Rod Blagojevich's salary 12.8 percent from $170,917 to more than $192,773.

Legislative leaders such as Senate President Emil Jones would get an 11.7 percent raise - $91,824 to $102,547. State lawmakers also would receive an 11.7 percent increase - $65,353 to $72,985.

We know. We know. There's going to be some reluctance on the part of taxpayers, and that's understandable. The economy is sluggish, people are losing jobs, not getting raises, paying more for food and gas. In that sort of environment, the thought of politicians getting huge raises is a tough sell. Especially given the failures of Blagojevich, Jones and others.

But hold on a minute. Last week, in the Chicago Tribune, Jones gave a fairly compelling justification for the proposal, saying to reporters: "I need a pay raise. I need a pay raise."

See, he needs it. He said so.

Now some might question whether the House and Senate would have the guts to approve such raises, given the poor performance of our top elected officials, such as Blagojevich; given the state of the economy; and given the ongoing embarrassment of the Antoin "Tony" Rezko case.

But have no fear, these raises can be approved without state lawmakers taking any action.

You see, to give themselves cover, the Legislature created the Compensation Review Board. The board makes a recommendation on salaries - in this case sizable raises - and the recommendation is implemented unless the House and Senate vote to reject them.

If lawmakers take no action, raises!

Even if the House votes against the raises, as long as the Senate does not follow suit, the increases are implemented. It is sort of the reverse of legislation that requires the House and Senate to both approve something. In this case, the House and Senate each has to disapprove of something. So no one actually has to vote to give themselves a raise. They just sort of happen.

Only in Illinois state government.

State fails us once again

It would be great if at some point our elected leaders could govern instead of bicker. The McHenry County Youth Service Bureau has had to lay off five workers and significantly reduce psychiatrists' hours. The cutbacks are the result of the state being three months late on payments. The state owes the nonprofit outpatient health care service $200,000.

As the youth service bureau was making these cutbacks, what was happening in Springfield? A vigorous fight over a politically motivated recall amendment. The constitutional amendment was championed by state Rep. Jack Franks, D-Woodstock. Franks wanted to get the recall amendment on the ballot for voters in November. The measure was a classic case of demagoguery. We were opposed to it from the start.

For recall amendment supporters, the Democratic process apparently no longer is sufficient. Voters should no longer decide elections at the ballot box. No. We should have a process in which a minority of voters can gather signatures, force a recall, and attempt to overturn the will of the electorate.

Why was the recall amendment marched forward? Because no one likes Gov. Rod Blagojevich. We agree he has been an ineffective governor, but that's no reason to change the state constitution. But this is what state government has become in Illinois. Meanwhile, an organization that is being significantly harmed by the state's ongoing incompetence, the McHenry County Youth Service Bureau, is pushed to the side.

John hit nail on the head

To the Editor:
"Growth does not always bring progress" in the April 24 issue was a great column by your best columnist, John Matijevich. Sometime back, he had additional wise words on why there should not be huge Olympic constructions in Lakewood Forest Preserve. (Chicago 2016 recently backed off that dumbest-of-dumb ideas.)

John hit the nail on the head multiple times. I likewise want the semi-rural feel of Lake County to stay that way.

I am against projects like the Route 120 bypass and widening Route 176. I don't want more four-lane roads in Lake County. History has shown that wider roads bring more strip malls and more cars. This is not the way to alleviate traffic problems. Politicians pushing for this stuff, regardless of party, will not get my vote in November.

I do favor better timing of traffic lights. And certainly let's address the terrible condition of so many of our roads -- such as Route 12 between Wauconda and Lake Zurich. Traffic still driving you nuts? Push for a commission to explore how we can get a viable mass transit system initiated in this county. Drive less when possible, combine your trips, and so on. Ride a bike when you can.

I don't want more cookie-cutter housing developments on farmland. I don't want Wauconda, Round Lake, etc., to look like Palatine. If this makes me "anti-growth," fine. Call me a Luddite if it makes you feel better.

If busy two-lane roads make Del Webb-types think twice about bringing more non-descript subdivisions to Lake County, GOOD!

Civic club to hold fest

To the Editor:
The Antioch 885 Civic Club once again will be hosting its Annual Spring Fest over Mother's Day weekend - May 8-11 - in downtown Antioch, just off Route 83 and Orchard. Selling tickets at the carnival has become the organization's primary fundraiser since the early 1970s.

I attended the carnival many times since I was a child and with my children as they were growing up. I never knew who sponsored it or helped with the event or where the proceeds went once the weekend was over. I assumed it came to town strictly for amusement purposes, but I found out otherwise when I became a member of 885 Civic Club three years ago.

This organization of 30-some people is composed of singles and couples, in all age groups, from Antioch and surrounding towns. We meet once month to enjoy social time and to decide where to donate the proceeds made from the four days of ticket sales.

Four scholarships - two at Antioch High School and two at Lakes High School - as well as donations to local, state, national and world organizations and charities are made over the course of the year following the event.

We hope people from all of the local communities will come to the carnival over Mother's Day weekend and help us make it a true success.

They will know that in coming they are helping others, while having a great evening of fun and games. To aid in our fundraising efforts, the Village of Antioch and Tony, the owner of Windy City Amusements, have given us permission to hold a raffle this year. Tickets will be sold on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with prizes awarded in the evenings of each of those days. Many Antioch merchants generously donated gifts or gift certificates to help make this raffle possible.

The carnival will be open from 6 to 10 p.m. Thursday, from 6 to 11 p.m. Friday, from 1 to 11 p.m. Saturday and from 1 p.m. to closing Sunday. Unlimited ride specials will be offered on Thursday from 6 to 10 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 5 p.m. for $16 a person per a "Build today ... for a better tomorrow" is the motto of the 885 Civic Club, and we welcome anyone who would be interested in helping us make a difference. FAA must protect safety of air travelers

The "friendly skies" have not been so friendly lately to thousands of airline passengers. The many canceled flights and delays brought havoc to the air travelers. It all happened because the airlines had to submit to safety checks on many of their airplanes.

Really, it was caused because regular checks that should have been performed were ignored because the Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) had been soft on regulating air safety. The airlines and the FAA must share the blame for the chaos because both should have known that they were complicit in the negligence.

The passenger reactions to the long delays were mixed and could be put in two categories. Some were very angry that the safety inspections interfered with their reliance on air flights and seemed to suggest that the safety inspections could be foregone for another day. I can empathize with their anger, but the safety checks were a job that had to be done.

John S.
Matijevich

Other passenger reactions expressed concerns about their own safety and said that it's "better to be safe than sorry." Their reaction was in everyone's best interests.

The FAA's coddling of the airlines runs counter to its mission. It must serve as a regulatory agency to protect the safety of the air traveling public and not to submit to the vested interests of the airlines.

Who knows how long this "looking the other way" by the FAA would have continued if it were not for the courage of three safety inspector "whistle-blowers" who exposed the laxity toward safety inspections. They fought intimidation from company supervisors and testified before congress. That's what brought the airlines to "play catch-up" in a hurry to meet safety inspection requirements.

The other bad news for airline passengers was the merger that has been proposed by Delta and Northwest Airlines which would create the largest airline in the world. The executives of the airlines cite the heavy cost of fuel as one of the savings that can result in the merger. They also contend that the merger would provide more trip choices and airfare reductions for passengers.

This isn't the first time that airline mergers have brought promises of fare reductions and other advantages for passengers.

But, the past is prologue. When American and TWA merged, as well as U.S. Airways and America West, passengers not only didn't see reduced fares, they were burdened with reduced flights, fewer seats, more delays, and lost luggage. Air travel complaints skyrocketed after the mergers.

Airline mergers take at least a year to finalize. I read that Delta/Northwest are aiming to complete their merger by October. Why the fast track? What's the rush? Could it be that the special treatment that the airlines have received from the FAA may run its course with the end of the Bush administration?

Airline mergers are a "lose-lose proposition" for air passengers. This matter should be thoroughly discussed and scrutinized so that the interests of the passengers are also considered.

The FAA has already shown that air safety isn't its highest priority; let's not let them get away with further siding with the corporate interests of airlines to the detriment of those who fasten their seat belts.

The friendly skies should be friendly to them.

Parenting is about sacrifice

I hosted a party this weekend for my 8-year-old son, Antonio. My husband was in attendance and so were my in-laws. Aunts, uncles and cousins came by. Oh, and my ex-husband, his new wife and the ex-in-laws were there, too.

Sound awkward? It felt pretty awkward, too.

Divorce is certainly hard enough on the two adults involved. For a kid, it is a huge bump in his or her road of life.

So, while I couldn't prevent my divorce from happening, I vowed from the beginning to smooth out that bump for my boys, the best I could.

And I do it.

I host parties, buy Father's Day cards and orchestrate visits. I tell stories of the good times the boys may not remember and remind them how much their dad loves them, even though he lives far away.

Because that is what being a parent is about: Sacrifice. Sacrificing small things, such as kitchen cabinet space for sippy cups and plastic plates and trading pedicures for play dates.

And then there are the big sacrifices, such as putting aside grown-up resentments for the sake of an 8-year-old's happiness. Until I became a mom, I never knew my heart could get so big. But it is unavoidable, when you become a parent, suddenly every decision is not just about you anymore.

When it comes to joint parenting, I'm not going to say it is always easy, or that I am always good at it.

And I know some divorce situations make civility downright impossible, so I am lucky to make it work at all.

But as far as the party, I am still glad I made the effort. Honestly, it wasn't that bad at all.

In fact, I think a good, if still slightly awkward, time was had by all.

When I reflect on my divorce and its repercussions for my sons, I think my greatest success would be for them to grow into adults, never feeling as if having divorced parents made them miss out on anything.

Reporter Geneva White smiles when she sees her new eyelashes after a "Lush & Lavish" lash extension at Mario Tricoci Salon & Day Spa in Crystal Lake.

Eye just want to celebrate

Lash extensions add drama

By GENEVA WHITE
editorial@nwnewsgroup.com

You want to look like yourself. That's the advice I constantly hear while searching for the perfect wedding day makeover.

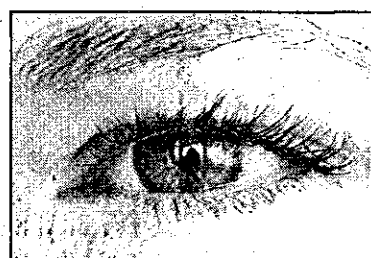

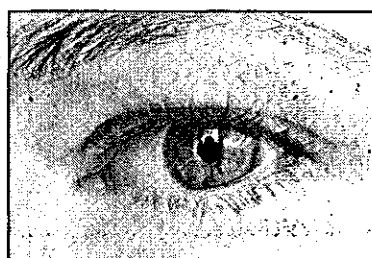

When it comes to donning the veil and white dress later this month, I definitely plan to look like myself.

Myself - with a little pizzazz.

One way women are adding a touch of glam to their special occasions is through false eyelashes. But these aren't the thick, black tarantulas you buy in clear plastic cases at the local drug store. The latest trend in enhancing the eyes is through eyelash extensions.

"Brides still want to look like themselves, but they want to be a little more glamorous on their wedding day," said makeup artist Elizabeth Bilow, owner of Makeup Chicago in Highland Park. "Especially in photos, it makes a big difference. It opens up their eyes."

Extensions can give us the fabulous hair styles we've always wanted. Now they can provide fuller, eye-battingly perfect lashes.

But would eyelash extensions work for my big day? I had the chance to find out recently during a visit to Mario Tricoci Salon & Day Spa in Crystal Lake. Mario Tricoci introduced Xtreme

Lashes to customers in late 2006. Madison Smith, makeup manager for Mario Tricoci's Schaumburg location, had me lay in a reclining chair. The process began with Smith placing anti-aging gel patches containing cucumber and aloe beneath my eyes, covering my bottom lashes. She then had me close my eyes and relax. Most customers either listen to music or are able to fall asleep during the procedure, which can take as long as two hours, she said.

"I thought when I started doing these only women who wear tons of makeup would want them," said Smith, who has about two new clients a week requesting extensions. "But the extensions are so natural. The majority I find are women who want their eyes to look natural, but enhanced."

Because my hair is brown, Smith chose black lashes to make them stand out more. As she used surgical glue to apply the lashes, I learned the average person has between 100 to 200 eyelashes on each eye. Smith planned to add about 45 lashes, which were 3 millimeters longer than my own, to each of my eyes.

The Xtreme Lashes generally last about two to three weeks before they start to shed out as the natural lashes grow, Smith said. The client can then come to the salon for a fill-in, or relashing, which takes about 45 minutes to apply, she said. To help ensure the longevity of the lashes, Smith recommends clients try not to get their faces wet for the first 24 hours. Steam from showers and saunas and wearing makeup also should be avoided during that time.

Smith suggests against shedding tears the same day the lashes are applied. But she said I'm perfectly safe to turn on the waterworks during my wedding ceremony.

"It's really good for people who have allergies or their makeup's constantly running," Smith said.

The extensions cost between $150 to $350, with relashing costing about $75.

For more information about the lashes, call 800-874-2624.

'Iron Man' rock solid fun

Downey Jr. right choice for superhero blockbuster

By JAKE BILINSKI

kgresey@nwnewsjournal.com

I'm pretty much a geek for comic book/superhero movies, which means I normally have decently high expectations when I pop down to see the latest larger-than-life action extravaganza manifested from the beloved tattered pages read in my childhood.

But I never really got into the Iron Man area of the Marvel universe. Not that I didn't think he was cool. (Robot guy blows stuff up = yay!) I just never really delved into it. So, I went into the movie with moderately low expectations. I'm still not sure if that factors significantly into my reaction, but I really dug this flick.

The tale centers on Tony Stark (Robert Downey Jr.), a billionaire playboy/inventor wunderkind who inherited his father's company, which manufactures advanced weaponry for the U.S. military. Stark is a life-in-the-fast-lane kind of party-boy socialite, with the obvious taste for hard drinks and fast women.

"Iron Man"

☆☆☆ 1/2

Rated: PG-13 for some intense sequences of sci-fi action and violence, and brief suggestive content

Running time: 126 minutes

Director: Jon Favreau

Starring: Robert Downey Jr., Gwyneth Paltrow, Terrence Howard, Jeff Bridges

He spon treks to Afghanistan to demonstrate a powerful new missile for the military. But soon thereafter his convoy is attacked and Stark is mortally wounded. He awakens to find himself hostage to terrorists who want him to build this new missile for them.

With his heart kept running by a custom-designed power source, Stark uses his time to instead build a weaponized suit of armor, so he can escape. Ultimately, he returns home and perfects his design (now he can fly and fire laser blasts, missiles and other fun stuff). Insert evil plot involving his company's weapons/technology that threatens the world, and BOOM! You've got motive for an iron-clad superhero.

The film works well on several levels. Jon Favreau (who will always be Mikey from "Swingers" to me) steps up to the director's plate again (he also helmed "Made," "Elf," and "Zathura") and does an admirable job.

He's got a strong sense of story to his technique and keeps the film focused on characters and plot rather than action, which is refreshing.

His one fault is that he stumbles a bit during the action pieces. Don't get me wrong, they look GREAT. But it's clear he's more in his element when a fight isn't going on. It becomes more evident in that the action sequences are a bit succinct by superhero standards. Especially the finale.

That being said, when Iron Man takes on terrorists (read: people), it's cheer-inducing. The violence, while intense, remains pretty PG-13 (no blood), but bad-dies are clobbered with an iron fist or blasted with a beam stronger than a turbo jet thruster and fly about like helpless ragdolls.

'Russian on the Side' a clever musical revue

By TOM WITOM
thomaswitom@yahoo.com

Mark Nadler, an accomplished pianist and a comic force likened to a combination of the Marx Brothers and Danny Kaye, opens his lively new one-man show "Russian on the Side," with a dizzying Kurt Weill-Ira Gershwin number, "Tchaikovsky (and Other Composers)," that incorporates the names and music of 49 Russian composers from the 19th and 20th centuries.

But, as the revue's title indicates, Russian composers aren't the main thrust of this Broadway-bound entertainment that is directed by Mark Waldrop.

Nadler highlights music from celebrated 20th century American songwriters, including Richard Rodgers, Oscar Hammerstein, Cole Porter, Ira Gershwin and Stephen Sondheim.

After the breathless opener, Nadler revisits each of the Russian composers cited in the song and shares bits and bobs on who influenced who, all the while tracing their impact on the American musical scene.

His is a virtuoso performance as a musician by a versatile, all-around funnyman. There's even a charming soft-shoe number performed while he's seated on the piano bench.

Nadler's historical references along with some witty gossip flavor the 90-minute show, while his deft work at the keyboard seals the deal.

However, one modification Nadler might consider to further enhance the substance of "Russian on the Side" would be for him to devote even more time to some longer passages of the music he performs so well.

Modesty matters when choosing a swimsuit

By GENEVA WHITE

editorial@nwnewsjournal.com

Picking out a swimsuit this season isn't the painful endeavor that it was in years past.

Tankinis, vintage-style suits and flattering one-pieces in hip colors and prints are among the many options available. And don't forget the selection of bags, flip-flops, cover-ups and hats that can transform a walk on the beach to a walk down the runway this summer.

"There's definitely more options than ever this season, and it's so fun," said Sonya Cosentini, style expert for T.J. Maxx. "You can put together a whole outfit around your swimsuit."

When it comes to bathing suit trends, geometric patterns and metallics still remain hip, Cosentini said.

"We're seeing a lot of gold colors, which are really pretty," she said. "You'll see a little bit of silver and copper. It's such a striking look on a bathing suit."

As for that quest to find the most flattering suit, there are a few factors to keep in mind. Some women tend to shun the bikini for fear it will expose too many trouble spots. But Cosentini said a bikini actually breaks up the body so there isn't a focus in one area. Just make sure the bottoms tie at the sides, she said.

This offers more room than slip-on bottoms that pinch the skin and look less attractive.

If you want the benefits of a two-piece without showing as much skin, the tankini is another option, Cosentini said.

"Whichever part of your body you're the most comfortable with is the part of your body you should accentuate," she said.

For women who carry more weight on the top half of their bodies, finding suits that offer both support and a decent overall fit can be challenging.

"Traditionally, you have to buy [swimwear] so big in order to get the coverage you need," said Sonya Das, founder of Hour Shape Apparel in Lake in the Hills. "If you're buying it two or three sizes bigger, the back of your swimsuit's going to ride up."

Das, whose business offers clothing selections for women with larger bust lines, suggests purchasing halter top-style suits.

"The halter style usually has more fabric to where it's going to cover more," Das said. "I think it balances nicely too with your shoulders."

Das said many of the vintage-style suits that boast the glam of old

Hollywood also are in fashion and look great on curvy women.

But what will guys wear to the beaches and pools this summer? They too have an increased number of choices these days.

Forget the scary-looking, too-tight briefs.

Men's swim trunks are offering more square-shaped legs and better coverage, said Robin Kiefer, vice president of marketing for Adolph Kiefer and Associates in Zion. The company owns several swim shops in communities throughout the Chicago area, including Glenview.

Kiefer said boxer-brief style suits also are in for guys.

Beva Caffe!: Enjoy a Warm, Italian Welcome at this Coffee Bar

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

Visit Beva Caffe! and the first thing you'll want to try is one of their inviting easy chairs. Coupled with the coffee bar's excellent coffee, it's no surprise that customers choose to linger here—reading, working, or chatting with each other or Beva Caffe!'s gracious owners.

As a result, business partners Kathy Godlewski and Terry Malone already have a steady stream of "regulars" since opening 3 months ago in the new Golf Hill Retail Center across from Fox Lake Country Club.

After running the family printing machinery business for over 20 years, Kathy said she wanted to do "something completely different with the second half of my life." She moved to Fox Lake, where she realized there wasn't a good place to go for coffee and conversation. The idea for a coffee bar celebrating her Italian roots took hold, encouraged by her mother Maria, and her business partner, Terry, who previously helped run the family business.

Now Kathy, Terry and Maria all say they're having a lot of fun serving their customers authentic Italian coffee, and specialties, along with a good dose of hospitality.

Beva Caffe! features its own exclusive "Beva Blend" of coffee provided by Fratelli Coffee Company of Schiller Park. Maria said their espresso, made with manual machines as opposed to automatic machines, is like comparing "a homemade meal with a TV dinner." I tried their popular "Caffe Caramella", a delicious caramel latte, reasonably priced at $2.95 for a small cup. Beva Caffe! also serves tea, hot chocolate, and cold beverages like fruit smoothies.

Kathy's mother serves up a tempting assortment of Italian pastries. The cannoli is made fresh every day, and there are eclairs and a selection of Italian cookies, along with "Aunt E's" handmade candies. Beva Caffe! also offers its own pocket sandwiches for breakfast or lunch, and Kathy said they plan on introducing more sandwiches and soups by the end of January.

Then there's the authentic

Italian gelato. Terry said the gelato is "all natural, all fresh fruits and nuts, no powder," and that their "Gelato Affogato" - hazelnut gelato "drowned" with a shot of espresso—is a special treat.

Kathy said that they make every attempt to listen to their customers, from satisfying their requests for a certain flavor of gelato, to offering free WiFi and a drive thru window.

She added that they offer a customer appreciation card that allows patrons to collect points toward free beverages, and that seniors receive a 10% discount.

Noting the family pictures on the wall, Kathy emphasized that she wanted customers to feel as relaxed as if they were in her home. Terry agreed. "This is our house. Come over for a cup of coffee."

I would, if I could, I will Yep, the sun is finally out and now we get a chance to go enjoy all the spring sports that we hold so dear to our hearts.

Now if spring sports to you are Cubs and Sox, then you have nothing to worry about. These teams have a lot of their season left.

But if springs sports are more about high school preps, then you better get a move on.

Yes, I know the long winter and rain kept you from coming out to early-season games. And things got busy at work and at home. But if you want to come out and see your team, then stop making excuses and go.

I'm just as bad. My sister plays softball on the sophomore team for Grayslake Central. And do you know how many times I've made it out to a game? Zero.

I know, I'm not being very good older sister.

But I've to work, and I'm in one of my best friend's weddings, and I'm in another wedding next month, and the drive from Kenosha, Wis., to Grayslake costs a lot in gas.

Well, you get the picture. I'm the queen of excuses. Luckily, my sister doesn't hate me and still wants me to try and make it to as many games as I can before the season ends.

But I'm sure I'm not the only one who is full of excuses instead of free time. Just look at the calendar, before you know it, track season will be over, and you know what that means, don't you? Every other spring sport will soon follow.

Believe it or not, the girls track IHSA Sectionals will take place this Friday at Grayslake North.

This will be one of our last chances to marvel at Grant's power shot put and discus duo of Bailey-Wagner and Tori Ziegler. And then the next Friday (May 16) will be the state finals. Where did the time go?

I'm not sure I'm ready for summer. Sure I love the warm weather, but I will miss my sister's stories about how her games went or be there to encourage her.

I'm sure many parents and coaches are going through the same thing, especially when it comes to the seniors. This will be their last hoorah and, of course, you want them to go out with a bang. But not every team can win, so you are there to let them know the memories are worth more than any trophy.

But the only way we can do that is to get out there and support our team, siblings, students and children.

I'm going to try and stop making my excuses. How about you?

Putting her team first

Carmel star pitcher brings positive attitude to the field

By JESSICA JACOBSEN
jjjacobsen@nwnewsgroup.com

MUNDELEIN – She might be just a sophomore, but Rachel Tack is already making a difference at Carmel.

Tack, 16, is a sophomore pitcher for the Corsairs softball team.

She garnered quite a bit of attention last year with her success in the postseason last year, and is continuing to garner that same attention this year.

Tack, of Antioch, began playing softball when she was 9 as a summer activity.

"After I started doing it, it was a lot more fun," Tack said.

Tack's dad would catch for her, and he also taught her something that really makes her stand out on the team – composure.

"I like to laugh a lot and not stress out," Tack said about being on the mound. "It's easiest for me."

Carmel softball coach Jason Raymond said her quiet drive is one of the things that have to do with her success.

"She won't show a lot of emotion out there on the pitcher's mound," Raymond said. "She kind of keeps an even keel out there, even if something gets her upset or rattles her. And she's good at forgetting the bad things and moving on."

"She's very competitive by nature in everything she does. I think we're lucky to have her."

Jason Raymond
Carmel head softball coach

Tack might be composed on the mound, but that doesn't stop her competitive drive.

"She's very competitive by nature in everything she does," Raymond said. "I think we're lucky to have her."

Tack's composure and competitiveness on the mound also has given her a proactive attitude when it comes to striving for success.

"Just try your best," Tack said. "If you make a mistake, you can't be worried about it. Everyone has bad seasons so don't stop trying because of it."

One of the hardest working fishing clubs in the Midwest

The Fox River Valley Chapter of Muskies Inc. is one of the fastest growing and hardest working fishing clubs in the Midwest. President Rich Gallagher presides over an exceptional group of board members who give the proverbial 110 percent to make the club what it is.

Members enjoy monthly meetings with great speakers and the club has a number of outings and social events. They raise money to stock muskies into local waterways and they also work to promote children's fishing.

The Fox River Valley Chapter has two big tournaments each year. The title of each is "Challenge on the Chain." By the way, that is not a typographical error nor even a rank misspelling on my part, "Challenge" is a play on words combining "challenge" and "muskelunge."

I hate to say this, but I think that someone from this group has stepped under too many ladders, crossed paths with too many black cats or broken too many mirrors. It is almost a guarantee that when this group hosts one of its big tournaments, the weather is going to be horrid for fishing.

The group has moved the dates of their tournaments from the beginnings of October and April to the ends of those months and all weeks in between and it hasn't made a difference - Mother Nature frowns on them.

Here you have some of the most dedicated musky anglers in Northern Illinois who are fishing on the State's most productive muskie waterway and the catch rates almost always fail to reflect the talent and effort expended by the participants. This year's event featured intensely strong winds making casting and boat control a true problem.

To show how badly the weather affected the tournament, Nick Cammarata had his best week ever on the Chain prior to the tourney. He boated 39 muskies in three days. Sure, some were small but his total included a pair of 48-inch beasts, one caught by his wife, Kathy.

The spring "Challenge" was held on Saturday, April 26. Eighty boats were manned by two-man teams of muskie maniacs setting out from the Thirsty Turtle. In all, thirteen fish were weighed in by twelve teams. The team of Crystal Lake's Dave Schober and his partner, Mike Witowski won the even with a two fish haul. Their skis were 41.5 and 38.5 inches long. They caught both fish on Petite.

Mark Krause and John Gobbo took second with another Petite fish. Channel Lake yielded the majority of the fish followed by Petite, Spring and Bluff.

The other finishers were: 3rd - Tim Wallies & Matt Stevens; 4th - Mark Alfrejd of Oakwood Hills and Mike Haber from Cary; 5th - Lake Villa's Martin Fudulov and Matt Zastrow of Island lake; 6th - Ron Weidner of Spring Grove and Dan Borak; 7th -

John Ryan and Dave Lundgren; 8th - David Hill Sr. of Crystal Lake and David Hill Jr. from Elgin; 9th - Crystal Lake's Mike Gleason and Rob Denkwalter; 10th - Nick and Kathy Cammarata from Cary; 11th - Gordy Linde and Rick Miscinski; 12th - Mark Lamont and Chris Van Allmen.

Congratulations to all of the participants for an excellent showing under such difficult conditions.

The Lake County Forest Preserve's Fox River Preserve & Marina near Barrington will be offering free boat safety checks on Saturday, May 17 and Sunday, May 18, from 9 to 3 at its 169-slip marina and boat launch. The boat safety checks will be conducted by the Coast Guard-recognized Chain of Lakes Power Squadron.

Boat checks are recommended annually and can answer user questions regarding equipment requirements, proper usage, boating regulations and local water conditions and to promote education.

The 517-acre Fox River Preserve & Marina is located on Roberts Road just west of Route 59 near Barrington. For information about the free boat safety checks, slip rentals or launch fees, call the Preserve at 847-381-0669.

FOX LAKE – Fishermen in the area have a new place to congregate.

It's not on a lake, though, but on the Internet. Fox Lake resident Paul Jones runs a Web site, www.foxlakefishing.com, which pertains to fishing in the Chain O' Lakes area.

It's an online community where local fishermen can share fishing stories, reports, photos and even jokes.

Just about anything that concerns a fisherman can be found on the site. The Web site recently started a forum, significantly increasing the number of hits it receives a day, Jones said.

The forum isn't just for fishing either. There are topics on the forum that deal with camping, hunting and just about every outdoor activity that exists.

"The forum is the most popular part of the Web site," Jones said. "That's where everyone can view a lot of different information, such as what kind of fish you can catch and keep from the lakes."

Jones said the site receives about 150 to 170 hits a day. At one time, it was receiving about 2,000 hits a day. He never thought it would have this much success.

"I wasn't expecting this much success for it, but it just started growing and growing," Jones said. "We just kept getting more hits and more blogs posted."

Since the Web site was created at the end of December, Jones said, it has received over 30,000 hits. He said it has received a lot of positive feedback.

"People who live on the lakes around here obviously go fishing a lot," Jones said. "They like the fact that they can receive fishing reports from the Web site, the water level of the lakes and even the weather report around the area."

The Web site was a Christmas gift from his brother who is a Web designer. Since it is a ".com" domain, there is a small fee to run the site, but his brother also takes care of that.

Jones said there are 21 members of the Web site who regularly post information. You have to register to be a member, but there is no fee. Nonmembers can view everything on the Web site, including recipes for cooking fish.

Jones said he hopes the Web site will continue to grow.

"I expect it continue having a lot of progress," he said. "This one is more local, so obviously it won't have as many members as a Chicagoland fishing Web site, but it should continue to grow."

Not a big fan of four-class system

Think your high school team could play with any of the big dogs the next couple seasons? Well, the IHSA has an offer for you.

In releasing its 2008-09 enrollment classifications last week, the IHSA also announced its board voted to let teams "play up" in classification if they so choose.

In the past, schools could decide to play up in a class, but had to do so in every sport. Now, they will be able to choose a specific sport in which a team can play up, but IHSA executive director Marty Hickman said it would require a two-year commitment.

"We haven't had a lot of feedback, and we don't anticipate a lot of teams playing up," Hickman said. "In the past, a school's teams all had to go up, and we felt that was discouraging them from doing that."

Hickman said Peoria

Joe Stevenson

Manual, a perennial state boys basketball power, moved up to Class AA in 2006-07, the last year of the two-class system in most sports.

One of the biggest criticisms of the IHSA's expansion was that it prevented teams from playing against the very best in the state, which often would come from the largest class. Now, schools have an option. If they know they will have a good team in a particular sport, they can petition the IHSA the year before and play up for the next two years.

One prime example might be Montini, a Class AA wrestling runner-up in 2007 and Class AA state champion in 2008. When the IHSA moves to three classes for wrestling next year, the Broncos might decide to compete in Class 3A.

Basketball fans this year thought the Class 3A state championship game, in which Chicago Marshall defeated Chicago Simeon, might have pitted two better teams than the 4A game, where Richards beat Zion-Benton.

Chicago North Lawndale defeated Manual in the 2A title game, and many thought those two teams could have thrived in 3A.

It will be interesting to see which school will be the first to play up, and how many might follow after it.

"It gives people an opportunity if they want it," Hickman said. "We might have a few, but I don't think we'll have many do it."

Tack focusing on hitting, pitching

• TACK

Even with her personal success, Tack's goal is not to break records but to help her team win the state title.

"It would be really great if we could win state, because I know everyone wants it really," Tack said. "And it would just be really great if we could do that for the school and all the seniors."

But to do that, Tack is looking to depend on more than just her pitching.

"Last year I focused entirely on pitching," Tack said. "And this year, I'm working on my hitting because I want to be a hitter ... if I strike out, I don't think I had my best game, even if I pitched a perfect game."

To improve on her hitting, Tack said, everyone on the team has helped when it comes to tips and critiques.

Because after this season Tack still has two more years of her high school career, she has not thought too much about playing at the college level.

Tack said she most likely would look at schools in the south when that time comes around.

Raymond thinks that Tack has the stuff to make it at the college level.

"She's got all the pitches to do it," Raymond said. "In college they throw a lot of different pitches other than just the fastball, and she has all those pitches, so that'll make for a good college pitcher."

And in case you are wondering whether Tack has any rituals before a game, don't worry, she does.

"I have to have a soda before the game," Tack said. "Usually Coke Zero."

Merit Building Supply: Your local home improvement advisor

By LESLIE GLAZIER-WERNER

A home improvement project can be a daunting task. Luckily, Merit Building Supply has the products and expertise to guide you, along with warehouse-direct pricing. That's why the area's largest homebuilders and contractors shop there too.

Merit Building Supply has a full range of products for new construction or remodeling. The company offers cabinets, counter tops, windows, exterior doors, interior millwork, siding, gutters, decking, plumbing fixtures, and much more—all from leading suppliers. In addition, these products are backed by some of the best manufacturer's warranties in the business.

Owner Dean Sjog said he started Merit Building Supply 14 years ago with the goal of "making service a huge aspect of the company." As a result, the company has specialists on staff dedicated to making sure your particular project is a success.

For example, considering a new kitchen or bathroom? Schedule a free design consultation with Merit's cabinet design specialist, Linette. Planning on replacing those windows? Consult with a Merit window specialist. Then rest easy knowing that the company's in-house window installation specialists will complete the job. Dean also noted that the company has a fully staffed service department to handle any repairs.

Many of the company's products are on display in its 2,000 square foot showroom, so you can inspect your selections before you buy. There's also a full design center for kitchen and bath projects, as well as a showroom displaying high quality faucets and shower fixtures.

As part of Merit's emphasis on service, Dean added that his company makes every effort to educate the consumer on how to avoid home improvement scams. Instead, they try to point the customer in the right direction during every phase of a project. He said they also recommend reputable contractors. "A lot of people come here for our experience," Dean noted. That, plus warehouse-direct pricing, make Merit Building Supply the smart place to shop for your home improvement needs.

(MS) — Most of us are overstocked with stuff to keep our homes looking good and operating efficiently. An inventory of most garages or basements would reveal an amazing number of cans of left-over paint, cleansers and repair materials like adhesives, caulks, sealants, lawn and garden fertilizers, pesticides and herbicides, etc. Many are toxic and must be disposed of with care.

How can we maintain our homes well while protecting our environment? Experts say you can reduce toxic impact by taking a few simple steps.

- Use simple, non toxic solutions wherever possible, like vinegar and water for cleaning windows, floors and other surfaces; rubbing alcohol for removing sticky substances; or an adhesive low in volatile organic compounds (VOCs).

- If you aren't sure how to properly dispose of unused or partially empty containers, contact the manufacturer or local disposal company.

- Choose products that have minimum packaging — and check to see that it is recyclable.

- Choose products that can be used successfully in many situations and on many materials. This reduces the number of products needed for the same basic job — like cleaning surfaces. There are surface cleansers specifically designed for each of these materials: granite, ceramic, stainless steel, plastic, glass, rubber, and so on. It's easy to end up with six or seven different surface cleaning products cluttering your supply cabinets.

Adhesives also tend to be marketed for specific applications. There's a glue just for PVC pipe or another one just for paper. A quick survey of your home will probably reveal at least six different adhesives from white glue to "super" glues to glues designed for specific materials (wood, ceramic, plastic, etc.). Many are toxic and overpackaged with non-recyclable materials.

Look for companies like Eclectic Products, Inc., who have developed a glue for people who want an adhesive that is able to bond with industrial strength to almost any material indoors and out. Amazing EcoGlue manages to outperform even the popular urethane glues that foam when applied, yet it is environmentally safe (less than 1 percent volatile organic compounds) for you and your family. It is a water-based adhesive with virtually no hazardous air pollutants and no animal derivatives. Even the bottle and packaging are 100 percent recyclable.

For more information, contact Eclectic Products at 1-800-767-4667 or visit our "house" at www.eclecticproducts.com/ecoglue/uses.htm to see all the things you can do inside and out with Amazing EcoGlue.

QUICK LANE'S FUEL SAVING TIPS

You can get the best mileage possible from your vehicle by keeping it in top shape and using some easy fuel-saving ideas. Quick Lane is here to help!

- TIRE PRESSURE: Under inflation or over inflation can lead to decreased fuel mileage.
- AIR FILTERS: Dirty air filters can cause your engine to run at less than peak efficiency, which increases your fuel consumption.
- OIL: Using the correct oil weight is important. Higher viscosity oils have greater resistance to the moving parts of the engine and therefore use more gas.

Mother's Day Specials

Memorable ways to celebrate Mother's Day

(MS) — It is often said that it's difficult to measure the immense love a mother has for her children. Until a woman becomes a mother herself, it's challenging to convey just how the heart expands in order to comfort and love the child that she helped create.

With all that Mom does day in, day out and week after week, it seems that only one day dedicated to thanking her for all the tears she's dried, smiles she's shared, and snuggles she's sat through just isn't enough. Still, that's what families across the country do once a year in May.

Just because Mother's Day comes and goes rather quickly, the gifts and gestures offered to Mom can last much longer. Why not try some of these ideas?

- Help others in need: Explain to Mom how her help throughout the years has inspired you to help others less fortunate. Give her a token of your thanks, but say that you're also donating time or money in her name for mothers who aren't as lucky as she. Perhaps there's a battered women's shelter or a teenage pregnancy support center. Maybe there are mothers who are homeless. There may even be someone right in your neighborhood who can use a helping hand.

- Memory jar: Create a memory jar that's filled with memories that you've had with your mother, such as the time she dressed up with you for Halloween, when you gave her the chicken pox, when she would "free" you from your room after punishments. Write these recollections on slips of paper and place them into the jar or other container. You can decorate the jar and print the sentiments on decorative card stock, depending upon how elaborate you want to make it. Mom can pull out a slip of paper every day and be treated to wonderful memories.

- Video commentary: Take out the video camera and interview children in the family of all ages. Ask them what they love and cherish most about their mother. The video can include tips of advice, passed-down recipes and other family traditions. Watch the video on Mother's Day as a family. Or Mom can pop it in anytime she needs a pick-me-up.

- Photo scrapbook: Gather loose pictures that you've taken through the years. Compile a scrapbook album of your favorite moments.

- Don't forget new moms: Send flowers or a gift to a new mother in the family. It'll mean a considerable amount to her, even if you aren't her child.

- Crafts for young kids: Handcrafted gifts are par for the course with young children. A clever idea is for Dad or an older sibling to help a young child trace his or her hands on a piece of construction paper. Cut out the hands and poke a hole in each paper hand. Attach a long length of string to each hand, representing the outstretched arms of the child. Enclose the hands with a note indicating that these hands show that: "I Love You This Much, Mom."

There are many other ideas for telling Mom how special she is. Naturally, store-bought gifts, child-made breakfast or dinner, a meal out at a restaurant, or even a mother-child day planned are wonderful suggestions.

Said changes involve an update (in most cases, an increase) of the charges applicable to Nicor Gas' natural gas sales and transportation services and of certain other charges established in Nicor Gas' rates, as well as modifications and additions to other tariffs and terms and conditions of service. In addition, said changes include various new riders affecting the manner in which Nicor Gas proposes to recover costs or expenses related to the following: uncollectible expense, operational gas costs, energy efficiency plans, qualified infrastructure plans and a volume balancing adjustment. The proposed change in rates (in percentage) for each principal type of rate classification is as follows. The percentage changes are calculated based on total revenues collected from customers in each rate classification, exclusive of taxes, but including the cost of purchased gas and other charges. <table border="1"> <thead> <tr> <th>Rate Classification</th> <th>Percentage Change</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td>Residential:</td> <td>Rate 1 - Residential Service 4.7%</td> </tr> <tr> <td>Non-Residential:</td> <td>Rate 4 - General Gas Service 2.0%</td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>Rate 5 - Seasonal Use Service 1.2%</td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>Rate 6 - Large General Gas Service 1.7%</td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>Rate 74 - General Transportation Service 0.5%</td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>Rate 75 - Seasonal Use Transportation Service 1.6%</td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>Rate 76 - Large General Transportation Service 1.3%</td> </tr> <tr> <td></td> <td>Rate 77 - Large Volume Transportation Service 1.4%</td> </tr> </tbody> </table> The following chart identifies the estimated average monthly consumption and the effect of the proposed change in percentage and dollar amounts based on such consumption, for small, medium, and large residential customers: <table border="1"> <thead> <tr> <th rowspan="2">Estimated Average Monthly Consumption</th> <th colspan="2">Effect of Proposed Change on Total Cost Excluding Taxes ($)</th> <th colspan="2">Effect of Proposed Change on Total Cost Including Taxes ($)</th> </tr> <tr> <th>Present Rate</th> <th>Proposed Rate</th> <th>Present Rate</th> <th>Proposed Rate</th> </tr> </thead> <tbody> <tr> <td>10 Therms</td> <td>$19.14</td> <td>$24.09</td> <td>$19.95</td> <td>$25.96</td> </tr> <tr> <td>100 Therms</td> <td>$168.34</td> <td>$112.90</td> <td>$156</td> <td>4.2%</td> </tr> <tr> <td>200 Therms</td> <td>$206.19</td> <td>$210.75</td> <td>$4.56</td> <td>2.2%</td> </tr> </tbody> </table> A copy of the proposed change in schedule may be inspected by any interested party at any business office of Nicor Gas. Customers should be advised that the Commission may alter or amend certain of the rates, terms and conditions contained in these proposed new tariffs and tariff sheet revisions after hearings held pursuant to the Act and 83 Illinois Administrative Code Part 200, and may increase or decrease certain individual rates in amounts other than those requested by the Company. All parties interested in this matter may obtain information with respect thereto either directly from this Company or by addressing the Chief Clerk of the Illinois Commerce Commission, 527 East Capitol Avenue, Springfield, Illinois 62706 Northern Illinois Gas Company d/b/a Nicor Gas Company Gerald P.
